other woman. Tell him when he is ready to come home, and behave like a husband and father, you will be happy to have him, but so long as he wants to engage in extracurricular activities he can keep his clothes in somebody else's closet.

Dear Ann Landers: School will be starting again soon. Our youngest child will be entering the fifth grade. The teacher has done things my husband and I considered appalling.

Our middle child was in Miss V.'s room two years ago. One day she gave every child in the class a tablespoon of patent medicine. When our child came home and told us about it we were furious. My husband begged me not to report the teacher to the principal for fear she might take it out on our youngster.

Another time, in an attempt to impress the students with the importance of safe driving, she showed the class some pieces of glass stained with blood. A member of her family had been involved in an accident. Our child came home ill.

What should we do — if anything? — VERMONT PARENTS

Dear Parents: If the patent medicine story is true and you did nothing about it there's something wrong with you — as well as the teacher.

That glass bit is positively gruesome. And you did nothing about that either? For heaven's sake, round up some other parents and go together to see the principal.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the booby-traps of teen-age drinking, write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Teen-Age Drinking," enclosing with your request 2¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope. (c) 1964, Publishers Newspaper Syndicate

Bringing Up Baby.

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GERBER, MOTHER OF 5

Know why newborns yawn more often and more adorably than anybody? It's Mother Nature's way of providing the extra oxygen new lungs need in the early weeks. (It takes a bit of time before a beginner's lungs work at top efficiency.) So when your cherub looks just about his very cutest, remember that yawn means he's getting the benefits of a deep and satisfying breath of air.

Feeding footnote. It's easy enough to fall into the belief that the more food you urge on your baby the better off he'll be. Tain't so. As an old friend once put it: "Forcing never made a baby a bigger or better eater . . . it just takes the enjoyment out of eating. Little ones are surprisingly smart when it comes to knowing their food needs and will eat enough if left alone to satisfy their hunger needs."

Solid facts with nutritional overtones. Specially prepared cereals play an important role in your baby's diet because they supply important nutrients baby needs. Gerber Baby Cereals, for example, are enriched with a special form of iron to help build good red blood. B-vitamins are also added to increase the nutritive benefits.

Gerber Cereals are famous for their mild, pleasant flavors and smooth, nice-to-the-tongue texture. Five varieties . . . in 8-oz. packages or Gerber Cereal Sixes, a variety-package containing small-

Eating enjoyment comes naturally with Gerber Strained Foods. Because they have naturally good flavors and come in a full food schedule, your baby can enjoy over 50 wholesome, toothsome varieties. Two brand new delicacies: Strained Creamed Corn and Strained Chicken Soup . . . sunny tempers made extra-nourishing by the addition of whole milk solids.
